Informed Consent Regarding Dental Radiographs

We feel it prudent to advise patients of general nature of treatment procedures, the acceptable treatment alternatives, and the risk inherent in the proposed procedures.

It is important that you realize that there can be serious implications on refusing x-rays, and important reason for having x-rays, and since it is your health at stake we want you to make an informed decision.

Our principle for taking dental radiographs (x-rays) is based on the ALARA principal which stands for As Little As Reasonable Allowable. Based upon the patient's susceptibilities to forming cavities or gum/bone disease symptoms, oral hygiene practices and findings on previous x-rays, the doctor will decide if x-rays will be necessary. Generally, it is advice that an initial appointment should include x-rays to determine the overall oral health condition.

Many of the diseases in the mouth occur in the hard tissues of the jaw, which include the teeth and the underlying bone which fastens the teeth in the jaw. The bone and the most parts of teeth and roots can only be seen with x-rays. They cannot be seen by the eye.

There are three types of x-rays:

(1) BITEWING XRAYS are useful for detecting many disease processes. Most cavities form in between the teeth where they are tightly contacting each other. It is impossible to detect these types of cavities by visual examination alone until they have destroyed a substantial amount of tooth structure at the sides of the tooth, then the overlying top of the tooth caves in and a "hole" is visible. By this time the decay is usually quite deep and close to the nerve of the tooth. These

X-rays also reveal the height of the supporting bone of the tooth and can indicate the need for more frequent visits to keep the supporting structures intact and the teeth from loosening.

(2) PERIAPICAL X-RAYS reveals the ligaments, nerve spaces and the bone structure around the root end of the tooth. This can detect pathological processes including the nerve of the tooth infection on the surrounding bone, and changes in the ligament which holds the tooth.

(3) PANORAMIC X-RAYS reveal the upper and lower jaw bones, the temperormandibular joint (TMJ)

(Jaw point) sinuses, and position of the wisdom teeth relative to nerve structures, sinuses and other teeth.

Without x-rays we are not able to see disease in its early state and this may result in needing more extensive treatment or irreparable damage being done to the teeth and bones. We are able to keep the dose of x-rays very low because of the type of specialized dental film used which in high speed, and also the use of focusing cone for the camera. In addition, we use body shields for further personal protection.

I have had the opportunity to ask questions of my treating doctor and fully satisfied with the answers I have received.

CONSENT

I understand that many dental conditions will be undetected until they are quite advanced or irreparable without the aid of dental x-rays. I wish that:

_____ no x-rays be taken and accept the risk of having conditions go undetected; or _____ x-rays be taken, as advised by my dentist, to diagnose any condition.

Informed Consent for Periodontal Treatment
(Dental Cleaning)

We feel it prudent to advise patients of the general nature of treatment procedures, the acceptable treatment alternatives, and the risks inherent in the proposed procedures.

I hereby request and voluntarily consent to periodontal treatment that has been recommended. I understand that the goal of this treatment is the removal of periodontal disease causative factors and to assist in the control of periodontal disease, which disease could result in eventual bone and tooth loss.

I understand that the nature of Treatment involves the charting and recording of existing conditions on an annual basis, or other previously discussed intervals, the removal of plaque, tarter and/or stain, and root planing- a controlled procedure to smooth and refine the root surface of the tooth.

The treatment has been fully explained to me including the risks involved. I have been informed that complications might include, but are not limited to:

There may be an unexpected sensitivity/allergy to the materials

Tooth sensitivity and gingival sensitivity

I further understand that the likely consequences of NOT having the treatment are the likelihood of progressing periodontal disease and eventual bone and tooth loss. This may include "gum abscesses"; periodontal infections involving the root area, leading to root canal therapy. Bone loss may result in the need for periodontal surgery and may result in eventual tooth loss

I have had an opportunity to ask questions of my treating doctor and am fully satisfied with the answers I have received.
